Suburban Hipsta: Your Friend or Racist White Guy?

Dear Other Press Collective:

As an afro-canadian, I was completely offended by the sweepingly stereotypical and blatantly racist portrayal of "the suburban hipsta" in the comic strip "Ped". Categorizations such as this one, whether they are done subconsciously or not, do nothing but assist in the concretion of the bigoted racially superior mentality that has become almost constitutionalized in North America in the last 200 years. I'm appalled that a self-professed environmentally and socially aware as yourself would resort to hypocritical tactics such as these in order to gain a few readers. It seems mentalities will never change. White people in the 1920's and 1930's thought it hilarious to paint their faces black and perform racist caricaturizations of a black "Uncle Tom" on stage, (I believe the word you used in your strip was "sellout") and I guess the people that write your paper find it hilarious as well.

World Cup Downhill an Embarrassment

Dear Other Press Collective:

I want to express my embarrassment at the presentation of airline tickets to Canadian skier Cary Mullen at the World Cup Downhill race in Whistler Saturday.

I feel this presentation is appropriate for a dinner after the event, not to be given on or at the podium.

Was this poor judgement or was this poor sportsmanship on the part of the organizers? Was there a plan to give any Fourth Place winner two tickets to anywhere in Europe that the airline travelled? Was it extremely important because of a contract and financial support to mention the name of the airline?

Without these answers I feel embarrassed. Just because we host the competition, it does not mean we must be on the podium.

ACHTUNG: SAVE THE COAST!

Dear Other Press Collective:

Unless you have been in a coma lately you will know that Vancouver's quintessential radio station, Coast 1040, has been rejected by the CRTC in its bid for an FM license. Marooned in AM limbo the only progressive local station cannot survive. If the decision is not overturned, Coast's brave new waves will be stilled forever. It is up to us, only we can save this sinking ship. WRITE TO CRTC, CALL THEM, FAX THEM, MAKE YOUR VOICE HEARD. THIS IS NOT A TRIVIAL ISSUE OUR FREEDOM IS AT STAKE. Coast is our voice and if we do not speak up we will lose our voice. If we do not rally to SAVE THE COAST all we will have left is my bad metaphors.

Beware: Betrayal of Trust with Local Pharmasist

Dear Other Press Collective:

Figuring in to most of our lives are a number of people, or figures who we trust almost unquestioningly. There are the police, fire fighters, doctors, nurses, pharmacists, clergymen, even our childhood caregivers be they our parents or not.

In recent years the news has been overflowing with stories of untrustworthy, indeed quite unsavory figures most of us were taught from early childhood to trust. Sexually abusive priests seem to head the list. Brutal, trigger happy police follow in a close second position. Doctors who seduce their patients are fairly common. Murderous nurses occasionally make the media scene. Fire fighters have an almost clean record, and who's ever heard of a dangerous pharmacist?

I have. The latter nearly sent me down the road toward certain death recently. Understand that I am a drug addict. I am powerless over my addiction and given the "tools of the trade" I will certainly use them to the best of my advantage.

Present legal restrictions prevent me from naming the "Doctor of Pharmacology" in question, or his place of employment. I can, however, tell you that he practices his undeserved trade quite close to Douglas College's New Westminster campus...you may have even dealt with him yourself. Unfortunately he is the head of his pharmacy. Let's hope he doesn't deal out too much advice to his charges.

What did this supposed professional do to deserve my wrath? How did he come within a hair breadth of destroying me? He issued me twice as much medication as the prescription my doctor ordered prescribed! Twice the amount of four mood altering drugs that my doctor ordered. Twice the number of pills my doctor felt safe prescribing me, a junkie, for a week's time. You could say that the pusher gave me a hell of a good deal!

If I were not an addict the pharmacist's mistake might have made little or no difference. If I were a frail elderly woman his mistake might have killed me. Dead.

However, I am an addict. I have no control over my addiction. This "health professional," and I use the term loosely, may have killed me too. Dead. Or at very least, awakened the dragon that sleeps inside me.

Season Ends in Sudden Death

Royal spikers lose fourth place in the BCCAA League to Malaspina Mariners

by Elaine Leong

Douglas College Women Royals were knocked out of provincial playoffs as they took a severe beating from the Malaspina Mariners.

The starting line-up consisted of Joanna Horvath, Tami Kuehn, Marcie Sattler, Blyn McMullin, Donna Furlani and Daria Vandergraff.

Though Malaspina took service first in Game 1, the Royals took no hesitation in taking a side-out with a brilliant play.

For the first three Douglas points, Malaspina could not hustle enough to dig the ball after the Royals' attack breached the Mariners' blocks.

Both teams seemed unable to handle the tips from the opposition nor were they able to even serve the ball over the net.

The lead for Douglas never exceeded five points but they did manage the attacks well. Unfortunately, the Mariners made quite a come-back to turn the game around to 11-9.

Vandergraff attacked the ball and won side-out for Douglas at this point but lost it as the ball flew into the net from service.

Though Douglas closed the margin in the score from 14-9 to 14-12 (for the Mariners) the momentum had already shifted.

The Mariners took a small win of 15-12.

In Game 2, Malaspina had started with a 4 point lead but Douglas made an incredible comeback, jumping the score to 7-4. The Mariners suffered from lack of hustling to good position, and net calls.

In this game, the first official (referee on the stand) was forced to call two re-serves as the second official (umpire) blew the whistle accidentally on two separate plays.

He had a quick whistle but it did not work to his advantage as he had problems covering the net.

Lorena Marshal, captain of the Mariners, took her jump-service abilities to good use. The Royals were startled by her powerful serves but continued fighting for the win.

It was at this point that the Douglas fans decided to scream and yell while the Mariners were taking service. The first official was forced into a position of informing the Douglas captain Joanna Horvath to keep the fans under control. (Captains hold this responsibility at the College level.)

McMullin took service and she served tough to help bring in the win of 15-11 for Douglas. This was the last good thing they did.

In Game 3, Marshal of the Mariners, who was the last player in her team's service round as indicated on the score sheet, put her powerful jump-serves into work again and brought in the last six points for her team to win the game, 15-9.

Game 4 showed the Mariners as the better prepared team. Each free ball they gave to Douglas was a minor loss but whenever, Douglas gave the Mariners a free ball, it was difficult for the Royals to take their minds off the small loss. Also the Royals could not adjust to the added pressure of Malaspina's hard angles. This extra loss of concentration made a tough match for the Royals as they lost 15-11.

Unfortunately, the Royals are left behind in the dust as the fifth ranked team in the BCCAA League. But the Finals still continue with #1 VCCLangara Falcons against #4 Malaspina Mariners at 10am and #2 College of New Caledonia Spruce Capitals against #3 Trinity Western University Spartans at 12 noon at Douglas College Gymnasium. The Bronze Medal Game (losers of 10am game and 12 noon game) is at 3pm. The Gold Medal Game (winners of 10am and 12 noon) will be played at 5pm to determine the BCCAA Provincial Winners who will go on to participate in the National CCAA Competition.

Hoopsters Enter the BCCAA Provincial Championships for their Second Year

Double Wins Qualify Both Men and Women Basketball Teams for BCCAA League Finals

by Elaine Leong

Douglas College's Women's and Men's Basketball Teams of 92-93 have no problems earning their berths into the Provincial BCCAA Finals.

They do face the challenge, however, of winning the right to home court advantage. This system has been in effect for approximately five years in the BCCAA league. The team with the best season record will host the playoffs and finals. According to women's coach Richard Norman, the teams who had earned home court advantage, since the format came into the system, have always gone to participate in the Nationals.

Currently, both teams are practicing for the Finals coming up this weekend, March 5 and 6.

The women hold almost a flawless record of 13 wins and 1 loss and is tied with University College of Fraser Valley who has an identical record of 13 wins and 1 loss in the BCCAA League. With the exception of four games, Douglas has crushed all opposition by more than 20 points.

Two of the more crucial games were against UCFV. The first game against UCFV on January 15th at UCFV was the only loss that Douglas had suffered. That first game was intensely played with several ties in the running score and 12 lead changes. The two scores stayed with 6 points of each other for the entire game. The case was that the team who had the last opportunity in the game to shoot would win the game. This certainly proved true as UCFV sunk the winning basket taking the game with a 65-63 win.

In the rematch, Feb. 5 it was a completely different story. Though the first half was also a contest with both scores staying within 6 points of each other with the exception of the UCFV lead 12-4, the second half showed off the Royals' superb defense as the Royals, particularly Robyn Knight, were noted for their superior grasp on the skills needed for the victory.

The spirit was more intense as both teams were looking forward to earning home court advantage for the playoffs on Feb. 26 and 27. The majority of scoring tries in the game came from foul shots as both teams consistently committed fouls sending both teams into one-on-one bonus in the first and the second halves.

The Royals were able to pull away to lead 57-45 with five remaining in the game. However, UCFV was definitely not going to leave the game without their remaining efforts put towards closing the margin to 59-55 (for DC).

It was when there was 4:36 minutes left in the game that the UCFV coach Sandy Chambers was assessed with a bench technical foul for mouthing off the official about a foul which was called against her players.

Celeste Rivet of the Royals sunk one of the two foul shots awarded from the bench technical foul and Tilly Woods sunk both baskets of the one-on-one bonus shots of the previous foul.

From that point in the game, Douglas took on a 11-2 run. Eight of the last eleven points came from foul shots as UCFV continued to foul the Royals. Douglas took in victory of 70-55.

This 15 point win placed the Royals in the number one spot in the BCCAA League even though UCFV held an identical record of wins and losses.

As B.C.'s top college team, the Royals ran confidently onto the court on Feb. 26 and 27, to tip off against

All Canadian Tilly Woods goes up for one of several rebounds for the Royals against Sun Demons Nelly Tardif. Woods has been selected as an All Canadian for the second consecutive year while playing for Douglas.

4th ranked Cariboo College Sun Demons.

An incredible show of teamwork and ball-handling skills saw the fans as the Royals took some fast-paced breakaway runs. The strong passing from Mandy Kirk in the backcourt in the post, to All-Canadian Tilly Woods in the front court by the three point line, to Robyn Knight in the Douglas key, who made a "behind the back" pass to Shelby Laidlaw who sunk two points was just one example of the Royals' good experience on the floor with the ball.

Most of the points came along as Jenee Lutz and Celeste Rivet drove several times into the key past the Sun Demon Defense. Woods and rookie Marlee Siemens play post positions.

Every Royals that hustled on the court had numerous chances to score from the post, outside the key and a few from behind the three-point line.

Woods put up a gallant effort as she challenged the Sun Demons who were on a breakaway run, drawing in two offensive fouls.

For the Sun Demons, #15, Sandra Pasman stood out with winning efforts as she was successful to breaking the Royal's flow with a quick of interception.

Van Santen and Woods beat the Sun Demons to 90% of the rebounds at both baskets.

Brook Nygard and Penne Familusi also enjoyed a good fast-paced game as they played in the post and as forwards by the 3-point line.

Unfortunately an injury was suffered by Douglas in the game as Pasman of the Sun Demons was caught between Familusi and Woods. Pasman swung her elbows high in attempt to clear some room around her. Her elbow connected with Familusi's face. Pasman was immediately assessed with an offensive foul but it was too late as Familusi ran off the court with a bleeding nose.

Douglas, however, still came through with a 84-63 victory.

The following day, the Sun Demons and the Royals met once again in the Douglas gym and again, Douglas' brilliant plays and pace brought in a well-deserved victory of 83-61.

The Royals have passed this step and are now currently practicing for the finals.

Head coach Richard Norman and coach Steve Todd are pleased with the team performance and look forward to the finals this weekend.

"We feel good. They've [the players] got to get more serious about the defense. We're healthy on the offense but we gave up too many baskets over the weekend," Norman said. "We should've been able to keep their [Cariboo] score in the fifties, but that's what happens when the top ranked team plays against the 4th ranked team. These two games are part of the "best 2 out of 3" playoff format. The Sun Demons are now bumped out of the Provincial Finals with the sudden death in their season. University College of Fraser Valley also bumped out the TWU Spartans in their semi-finals.

The provincial finals will follow the same format that the semi-finals took. The first game will be hosted by Douglas College against the Fraser Valley Cascades on March 5, 6pm and UCFV will host the second game at Clearbrook Community Centre the following day at 6pm.

"I know the girls will be working really hard this weekend," Norman added.

Meanwhile, head coach Steve Beauchamp of the Men's Basketball Team is also having much success with his team as they also hold an almost flawless record of 12 wins and 2 losses.

The highlights in their season included the games that they had lost to VCCLangara and Malaspina.

Facing VCCLangara in the first half of the season, December 12, though Douglas held the lead up until the last seven minutes in the game, the Falcons took no hesitation in turning the game to their own favour. The Royals had "countless opportunities", as noted by the coach, to take the game back but by that time the momentum had already shifted to the opposition.

In the rematch, also the Royals' last league game of the season, the Royals crushed the Falcons 112-75.

From the opening tip to the last buzzer, the Royals kept control and dictated the entire game.

Using full-court pressure sped the game up and allowed the Royals the opportunities to steal several plays from the Falcons for some easy lay-ups. The Royals led 60-37 at the first-half mark and continued full-court press to win the game.

The season records qualified the Royals to compete in the semi-finals against University College of Fraser Valley, Feb. 26 in the Douglas gym and Feb 27 in the UCFV gym.

In the first game, UCFV and DOuglas hustled right from the opening tip. Taking the fast pace brought in three fouls before Chris Vandermark could sink the initial basket in the game.

Douglas put on the full-court press seeing the Cascade guard, Vince Van Dyk, was susceptible to making a bad pass under pressure.

Body-contact in the post was at the maximum as the Royals and the Cascades often fell to the ground from being shoved or losing their footing.

And All-star Vern Knopp and Vandermark, at separate times, challenged the opposition's offence with solid screens in the key and drew in two offensive fouls.

The scores were close throughout the game and the lead was unable exceed six points.

In the second half, the Royals and the Cascades continued to turn the plays over exchanging leads up until the last five minutes where both teams were tied at 64.

As noted by the coaches, the Royals went on a 12-0 run and cruised to a well-deserved 81-71 victory.

"Douglas' superior endurance, continuous full-court pressure, and 80% free throw shooting vaulted them to victory," Beauchamp wrote, in the written in the weekly report.

The following day, the Royals traveled to UCFV campus and defeated the Cascades in a thrilling 2 point win!

In the beginning of the game, UCFV had taken a 12 point lead but the Royals slowly closed the margin.

As the score was at a 46-39 favour for the Cascades, Douglas took another run that game as they had in the previous game. This time, they took 9 points to take the lead which had continued to another run, 7 points to lead for the remainder of the game.

The Cascades had closed the wide-margin score to a 1 point lead for the Royals in the remaining four minutes.

Douglas College was not ready for defeat and prevailed with a 64-62 victory.

These two wins have knocked the UCFV Cascades out of the BCCAA League Championships! Meanwhile Malaspina Mariners defeated the VCC Falcons in their semi-finals.

Beauchamp is training his team to compete and beat the Mariners by going over constant drills, through game plans and scouting out the opposition will be an asset to the game as our Royals will be able to take, hopefully, a faster pace to out-hustle the Mariners. Goodeye-contact was stressed much in practice throughout the season.

"Well if you don't have good eye-contact and good communication then your defense will be lacking," Vern Knopp stated.

Knopp also mentioned that Malaspina has some really large sized players, especially the guards.

"They bigger than our guards but I don't think it means they're better than our guys!" Knopp added.

The men are looking forward to tipping off against the Mariners.

Men's Volleyball Team Advance to Provincials

Something to work on: "Move Your Feet! Happy, Happy Feet!" Newman Sings Musical Repetoir During Tuesday Night Practice

by Elaine Leong

"You'd better duck when I hit!" Braden Gabert exclaimed as he picked up a volleyball and hammered it into the wall just prior to the team's Wednesday night practice. Gabert was referring to the previous game against Okanagan and the upcoming game against Okanagan in the semi-finals.

The team members are training for the BCCAA League Finals at Trinity Western University March 5 and 6.

After defeating Okanagan and the College of New Caledonia on February 18, but losing to arch-rivals TWU on the same week-end, the Men's Volleyball team capped off their season with a 13-5 record.

The Royals have earned a well-deserved third place finish in the league season, and look forward to competing in the semi-finals against Okanagan on March 5.

The season was quite a learning experience for the team, as the second and third year veterans had trouble with consistency, especially on the road.

In the first half of the season, though the Royals were undefeated until the last three games, the team realized they needed a break.

So the Volleyball teams (through coach Newman and Women's coach Dave Dalcanale) organized a social trip to San Diego during the Christmas holidays where they could spend time just getting to know each other better.

"It's like, we could never really get together to socialize," Peter Konopacki said. "Like after practice everyone would just go home and ... well I don't know, do their homework."

This trip brought the Royals closer together to become a close-knit team.

Vihn Ngo noted that the Royals' team is a much better experience than the high school teams.

"We're more mature, attitudes are different. It's better," Ngo mentioned.

Now, after the league play has finished for the Royals, the Other Press, Douglas College's student newspaper, conducted an interview with the team to get their views.

Elaine Leong: How are you working as a team?

Braden Gabert: Beautifully! It's about not getting down on yourself [on the court, during the game] and everyone else.

Adam Faris: Better than last year, I mean last semester! But we need more defense!

BG: No, we need more motivation!

Paul Chu: We need more intensity!

EL: You've worked hard from tryouts and now, you're in the playoffs! How do you feel?

AF: We expected it but when we lost those three games at the end of last semester, well, we started to question it.

Jeff Foo: We still have a lot to work on. Get our act together. We started really well in the beginning of second semester, but, lately our games have been really off.

Fred Foo: We could be really ready and have a really good chance or we could go sluffen in and get in deep shit.

Jeff Foo mentioned that Douglas was in need of more middle blockers. JF: It's really hard because we only have two on the team and it's tough on our shoulders.

[J.Foo and Faris are the two existing middle blockers. The other players may go up to block as well but the roles of the middle blockers are much different from the other positions on the team.]

EL: Have you suffered any injuries during your season?

BG: We've been unlucky with injuries this year, no-one person has been healthy.

AF: We've been plagued with injuries.

Sun Cho suffered leg injuries that had confined him to crutches for the majority of the season. In one of the team practices, he was practicing his jump serve. Gabert happened to be busy chasing a rolling volleyball in Cho's direction. As Cho was already in the air ready to hit the ball, Gabert collided with him. Cholanded on Gabert's head and injured his foot while awkwardly landing. Gabert did not sustain any major injuries.

EL: Newman claims that you, as a team, have control of everything you do on the court, which means if you win, it's because you played an excellent game and if you lose, it's because you goofed up somewhere. The Entire Team: It's true! BG: I agree with that. Vihn Ngo: It's when we start making stupid mistakes, then we lose.

EL: I haven't seen you guys when you've lost a game, mainly because the games you lost were away-games, does home-court play a factor in your games?

SC: If we're gonna be the best, we have to be able to beat anyone, anywhere.

While the team says that home-court advantage was not a factor in their games, they did hint at the minimum fan support they've been getting through the season.

"We have no real school spirit or support," Konopacki quietly stated.

Sun Cho agreed and had even requested that a "house ad" for the Athletics Department be designed to publish in the paper.

Meanwhile Gabert and Faris both mentioned that DC needed new floors for them to dive on.

No one on the team claimed to have any traumatic experiences until the traveling involved, throughout the season, came to settle in their minds. Ngo claimed that the ride to Castlegar was the worst trip experienced by the team.

"We almost died on those bus rides, now that was a traumatic experience!" Konopacki laughed.

"We don't take bus rides anymore! We take plane rides!" Faris exclaimed, showing obvious fear in his facial expression to the thought of the bus rides.

EL: Are you ready for the playoffs? SC: Physically we're okay! Mental on and off! Ninty per cent of practice is the mental preparation. Physical only counts for 10% of prep.

Faris, however, holds high hopes already.

AF: We're confident that we can win. We just need some fine tuning. We gotta get working as a well-oiled machine!

BG: Yeah, this is one of our better years to go to the Nationals!

Volleyball is the up and coming sport, and now, DC students have the opportunities to come out and watch some good volleyball.

The Men's Team will be playing at TWU which is a half an hour ride from DC campus! Let's take some time to support our team!

SHAKE THE FOUNDATIONS!!!

Hello, I'm David Marsden, General Manager for Coast 1040. It must be noted that what I am about to talk about is my personal point of view. It is also important to note that I have a high regard for the Canadian Radio Telecommunications Commission (C.R.T.C.), although I have often disagreed with decisions they have made. This is one of those times.

I am sure that by now you have heard that Coast 1040 applied to the C.R.T.C. to switch our programming to an FM frequency. The C.R.T.C. have denied that application. They have decreed that we will not be permitted access to the FM.

Our reasons for wanting to go the FM are quite fundamental. You told us you like FM more than AM. FM gives a better quality of sound and the exclusive music we play deserves to be heard in full FM stereo. We sought a technically improved stage on which to offer this music so that enough of you would enjoy it to make our effort.

This is the third time the C.R.T.C. has denied radio listeners and music lovers, in Vancouver, the opportunity to have a modern rock radio station on the FM band. I consider this a sad statement from those in their Ottawa towers. In it's public decision, the C.R.T.C. noted negative interventions opposing our application from: JR Country, CHRX, Z 95.3 and CITR...UBC radio.

In a few short years, Coast 1040 has introduced more than 100 local artists to the airwaves. Never before had these musicians been given the opportunity to be heard on commercial radio. Coast provided that. Some of these musicians have experienced success because of it. The decision by the C.R.T.C. is a betrayal to these musicians. Since no other commercial radio station supported these musicians, our continued existence is very important to the survival of this growing industry. We sought a more comfortable audio stage on which to showcase the music of the Lower Mainland.

After all the C.R.T.C. has said about support of Canadian talent, I find it shocking that they would appear to pay only lip service to our contribution. The C.R.T.C. indicated we were moving too fast in looking to change to the FM. We only moved as quickly as Vancouver changed its AM versus FM listening habits. The complex process of doing this can take over a year to accomplish within the C.R.T.C. procedure.

Those who want to hear something other than the hit chart and classic rock offered by both Canadian and American radio, were given an option with Coast 1040. We are now in the position where that option may disappear from the radio if something does not change. Since that question of change has been rejected by the regular that change now must come from each of you.

The C.R.T.C. maintains that it is interested in what the listeners have to say. Let us test their sincerity. We need you to get activated. We need you to CALL, FAX and WRITE to the C.R.T.C. right now. We don't have a lot of time to get this done. I am appealing to you to get the message out that you are disappointed and annoyed that you have been denied all that we do in the superior sound of FM.

A Victim of the System

When the film starts there is no music only the sound of breathing, inhalation and exhalation. Then we get a close up of Michael Douglas. He is an average American citizen caught in L.A. gridlock due to 'road repair'. He is a man on the verge of total collapse, as he tries to cope with the loss of his family and his job at a defense plant. Douglas abandons his car and at that point starts the disintegration of his morals and his sanity.

Falling Down (movie)
Warner Brothers
reviewed by Byrun Stedmann

The ad begins and the trailers tell us that Douglas's character does what we've always wanted to do, and they're right. Who among of us hasn't been disgusted with some aspect of our society to the point where we wanted to do something destructive? Haven't you ever wanted to smash a display case of over-priced items? Or scare the hell out of obnoxious construction workers? We've all wanted to do something drastic at some point in time and Douglas's character does it.

Douglas's character isn't named until near the end of the film, and before that he is only known by his personalized license plate: D-FENS. Bill Foster (D-FENS) wanders L.A. through scenes of societal and urban decay, he reacts against what he perceives as victimization. He lost his family because of his temper, and he lost his job because he was 'obsolete' and 'economically non-viable'. D-FENS is an ordinary citizen who has been victimized by the American Dream, modernization, and himself. Later however, D-FENS transforms into the victimizer after a murderous encounter with a neo-Nazi surplus store owner (well played by Frederic Forrest).

Joel Shumaker (who directed St. Elmo's Fire and Flatliners) and Ebbe Roe Smith have done a fine job of presenting a story of contrasts and parallels. Falling Down is about people (particularly, of course, Americans) who have been abandoned by the American Dream, and people unable to cope with change and the stresses of life.

Every character is a representation of these ideas. Detective Prendergrast (Robert Duvall) is retiring from the L.A.P.D. early so he and his unstable, neurotic wife (Tuesday Weld) can lead a quiet life in Arizona. Prendergrast is a man beginning to regain his life thanks to D-FENS's journey into oblivion. D-FENS is unable to cope with life and cracks, Mrs. Prendergrast totters on the edge of sanity. Prendergrast is a symbol for the old system - warm and personal. His partner (Rachel Ticotin) represents modernization - detached and impatient. Prendergrast learns to cope with loss and change, D-FENS cannot. D-FENS and Prendergrast wear the same clothing.

Falling Down is to the point and has much to say about society. Douglas plays D-FENS as a sympathetic character who descends to the rank of 'bad guy', he is never a clear cut hero or villain - he is real. Go see Falling Down and see if you can look away.

Pack Your Psychedelic Luggage & Get Ready for Paisely Suitcase.....

Paisley Suitcase is a four piece band from White Rock. The oldest members are twenty- three and the youngest is seventeen. If any word describes the band it has to be fun; their music is danceable in a Grateful Dead sort of way, but without being annoyingly repetitive or bland. The band seems to have been influenced by Van Morrison, Led Zeppelin (the John Paul Jones side of it), Spin Doctors, and especially The Tragically Hip.

Paisely Suitcase
A Musical Feature
by Byrun Stedmann

The members of Paisley Suitcase include: Jon Anderson (guitar and vocals), Nate Torhjem (Keyboards\ Piano and vocals), Mark Rouss (bass), and Kevin Wiebe (drums). They used to be a five piece band, but their rhythm guitarist has just recently quit. Manager\ promoter Don Webber said that Paisley Suitcase will continue as a four piece.

Mark Rouss is an incredible bassist. At the age of seventeen he plays better than many 'professional' musicians with record contracts; he holds down the foundations with Kevin (a solid drummer in his own right) and grooves while he does it. Jon has a great voice capable of handling the demands of rock and soulful enough to do credit to their one reggae song. His guitar playing is more than competent and shows a strong Stevie Ray Vaughn\

Van Morrison influence. Finally there is Nate Torhjem. Nate's vocals and stage presence (when not behind the piano) have been compared to The Tragically Hip's Gord Downy. Nate, in addition to Jon, adds to the emotional power of Paisley Suitcase; he brings out the darkness in a song like 'The Kindling'.

Paisley Suitcase is a band to look for in the future. Their material has great appeal to the 'Generation X' crowd- it's danceable, and it's serious without being overly heavy-handed. Next time you hear about them playing at some venue I recommend going to check them and hear for yourself.
